HELPFUL POINTS TO INCREASE MILEAGE

Careful motorists who seek the most economical operation of their cars may get some pointers for increasing their tire mileage, and incidentally reducing the expense in this important and often costly element in motoring, from the following suggestions put out by one of the large rubber companies in the manufacturing city of Akron, Ohio:

Don't overload your tires. A tire will give out sooner from overload than from almost any other cause.

Don't underinflate. Underinflation and overloading account for fully 90 per cent of all tire trouble.

Don't neglect small cuts. These will often extend further than you think. Dirt and water get in, the fabric rots, and a blowout follows. Look over your tires from time to time and repair small cuts.

Don't run in ruts, car tracks, or against curbing. The side walls of a tire are much thinner than the tread and will not stand this kind of usage.

Don't start or stop suddenly or skid around corners. The strain thus set up in your tires is terrific.

Don't run on a flat tire. Better run on the rim if only for a short distance.

Don't let oil, grease or gasoline remain on your tires. They all destroy rubber. Wash only with pure cold water and a little soap.

Don't keep a spare tire out of use too long. Change over occasionally. A tire lasts better in use than exposed to the sun and rain on the running board or suspended at the rear.

Don't let your rims get rusty. Common stove polish will keep them in good condition.

Don't let the weight rest on a deflated tire. Jack up the wheel or remove the tire.

Don't let your axles or rims become bent. If your wheel doesn't turn free and true, your tires will suffer. If your wheels are not in line, remedy the trouble—you are dragging your tires. They will show a rapid and one-sided wear not generally understood by motorists, and usually blamed on the tire.

CLEANING CONTACT POINTS

It is sometimes difficult to find a really satisfactory agent for cleaning the contact points of ignition apparatus or the surface of a commutator on a starting motor or a lighting dynamo. There is something known as "cuttlefish paper" which is finer than the finest quality of sandpaper and which is very well adapted to this operation. Cuttlefish paper is not regularly carried by hardware stores, but it may be obtained from dental supply houses.

If it's in The Herald, it is news.

HINTS TO THE CAR OWNER

Check valves which control the flow of oil in a plunger type of pump should be cleaned occasionally to insure proper working. In case the oil does not flow or the gauge shows no pressure it may be due to the pump becoming air bound but usually cleaning the check valve removes the trouble.

When an engine knocks something is wrong. Whenever there is a rattle something is loose that ought to be tight. It takes quite a little skill to locate the different kind of knocks, but practice makes perfect. By going over the engine carefully these may be eliminated one by one.

Remember that too much oil is almost as bad as too little. If the oil level is too high too much oil will get up on top of the pistons and a lot of trouble will follow. But too little oil is worse, as it may result in scored cylinders, seized pistons and a bent crankshaft. So watch your oil gauge and keep the system just full.

When a gasoline feed pipe is looped or otherwise bent in order to avoid liability to breakage, air locks and interruptions of the flow of fuel are likely to occur after filling the tank unless sufficient gasoline is poured in to produce the pressure required to drive out the air that will be trapped if the loop is made in a verticle plane. If the loop is turned so as to lie horizontal, however, there will be no such trouble. Incidentally, a complete loop is the best safeguard against crystallization and breakage of the pipe.

And, remember, "safety first!" Inspect the fastenings of the steering gear at least once a week and try the brakes every time your take the car out.
